Your possessions will be packed and prepared to standards that aim to ensure safe and secure transportation. Tried and tested shipping lines together with global service partners at destination provide peace of mind for all our customers.

The moving process begins with a visit to your home by one of our experienced consultants. During the visit an assessment of what you plan to move will be carried out, items requiring specialist packing will be identified and the most appropriate method of shipment discussed.

From this we will provide a quotation for your removal that is tailored to meet your requirements!

Planning your move

As international specialists our packing teams have a wealth of experience, are trained in all aspects of export packing techniques and use quality materials to prepare your possessions for removal.

Packing is carried out in your home, giving you the chance to see the care taken as each item is individually wrapped. At this stage too, you will see the extra precautions taken with high value and vulnerable items.

Each item of wrapped furniture and box is labelled with your name, destination and a description. When completed, every item is listed on an inventory, a copy of which you will receive as a receipt. Other copies are used for customs clearance overseas and during the delivery to your new home.

Methods of Transport

Dependant on the size of your consignment and the destination, your belongings can be transported by land, sea or air.

Whilst airfreight is quick, there are size and weight restrictions, and this method can be relatively expensive. Nonetheless, for smaller, urgent items and for some remote destinations this method can be the most suitable.

Removals to mainland Europe are usually carried out by road in purpose-built vehicles. We can provide a pre-determined schedule to cover collection and delivery, or alternatively a "part-load" service more suited to smaller consignments and lower budgets.

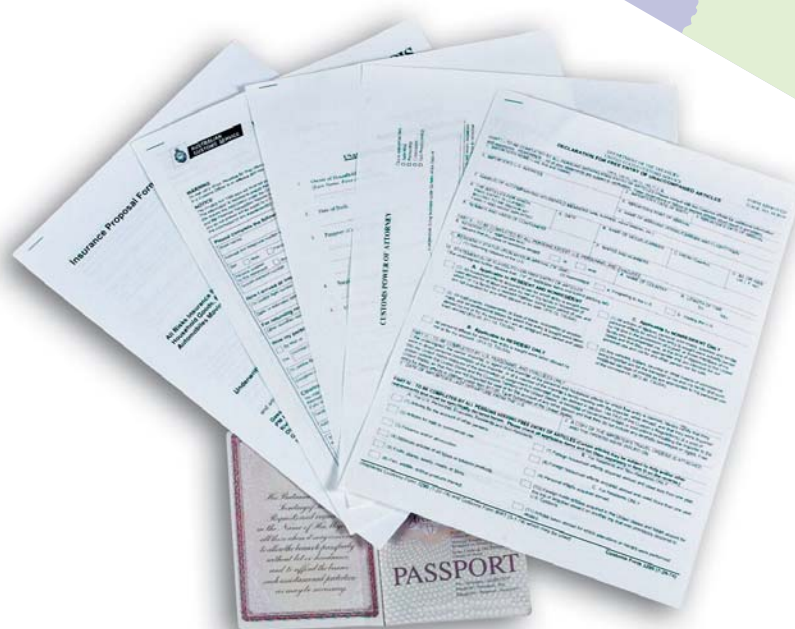

Consignments for destinations outside mainland Europe are generally transported by containerised sea freight. Depending on the quantity of items to be moved, the required timescale and cost analysis, personal effects are despatched straight from the home in an exclusive shipping container, or consolidated as a part load via Atlantic's Storage Centre.

Whether your consignment goes by road, sea or air, Atlantic International Movers will keep you up to date with the projected destination arrival time.

We will advise you of the documents required for importation into your new home country. At the destination, our carefully selected service partners will carry out the customs clearance process and arrange delivery to your home, where your goods are normally unpacked and set up ready to start your new life.
